

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Wednesday, 6 June 2018

BWA CEO ANNOUNCES RESIGNATION

Debra Graham, Bicycling Western Australia (BWA) Chief Executive Officer has announced her resignation.

“I am privileged to have been involved with BWA during a significant period of change,” Ms Graham said. “The organisation has taken strategic steps towards a strong and focused sustainable future.”

BWA President, James Fairbairn said “Debra has made a vast impact in the brief time she’s been with the organisation including her involvement in developing BWA’s new strategic direction,”

“On behalf of the Board and myself I would like to thank Ms Graham for her enormous contribution and we wish her well for her next endeavours.” Mr Fairbairn said.

BWA is an independent, membership-based organisation focused on representing our members and improving riding conditions. BWA is self-funded through the support of its members; event participants; and partners.

The BWA Board have commenced recruitment for a new CEO. In the interim Chris Gaskell will be acting in the position until a new CEO is appointed.

###

About Bicycling Western Australia

BWA is an independent, membership-based organisation focused on representing our members and improving riding conditions. BWA is self-funded through the support of its members; event participants; and partners.

We are working hard to delivering premier cycling events, products and services that are highly valued by our members and the broader recreational cycling community.

For more information please visit: bwa.org.au

Bicycling Western Australia acknowledges the generous assistance of the following partners:

Department of Local Government, Sport and Cultural Industries

Media enquiries:

Katie Presenza

Marketing Assistant

T: 08 6336 9696

E: katiep@bwa.org.au